THE BARONESS BURDETT-COUTIS.

A WOMAN'S TRIBUTE TO A WOMAN.

Love crowns thy name. Even I, who never met thee,
A sacred niche in Memory's temple set thee,
Remembering how the poor will not forget thee,
Now thou art gone!

The wealth some curse became through thee a blessing,
Unbounded powers and provinces possessing,
All held in trust for Love's divine assessing—
All wrought upon,

Till in a thousand dark, forgotten places,
And tens of thousands of the saddest faces,
New hopes and strivings and returning graces,
Rekindled, shone!

Now some, who through thy hands felt Love's redeeming,
Perchance embrace thee, with sweet welcome
beaming,
In joyous ways beyond our mortal dreaming,
Where thou art gone!

THE CHINA FAMINE.

THE SITUATION ROUND SUCHIEN.

Suchien, January 28.
Round this city the country is denuded of animals, and transport is most difficult. There is no grain here. I have been asked by the mandarin in charge of the relief to request the Viceroy to order that the collection of Customs dues and like on grain and foodstuffs be suspended till the end of the third moon, i.e., the beginning of May.

I have visited many homestead hereabouts.
The majority of the people are living on green (grass and leaves) and gruel. Evidence of the growing severity of the famine increases on every hand.

The roads over which travelling is almost impossible owing to the rain are in a neglected state. "All the officials and gentry deplore this and state that they wish for good roads, but no attempt has been made to repair these or to undertake other public work.

In the meantime the people are sitting still and slowly starving.—N.C.D. News.

TRAFFIC IN SLAVES IN THE CONGO.

LETTER TO SIR EDWARD GREY.

The Congo Reform Association have forwarded a letter to Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, setting forth further details of the condition of affairs in the Katanga region. It is pointed out that the region comprised between the Lubidi and Lulua Rivers and Lake Dilolo is still wholly controlled by revolted Congolese soldiery, and that the Congo Administration makes no attempt to interfere with them. Traffic in slaves, it is said, prevails with the knowledge and toleration of the local officers of the Congo Administration in North-Eastern Katanga, in the immediate neighbourhood of Mptowa, the most important administrative post on the western shores of Lake Tanganyika.

In the spring of 1905, the letter says, a brisk slave trade was conducted by certain chiefs, and particularly by an Arab named Sefu, with the co-operation of other chiefs on the right shore of the lake, in the vicinity of Mptowa. This chief was in close and constant relationship with the local Administration, which received from him "food and other things," and his operations were carried on with its full cognisance. The local administrator had prevented a local magistrate from interfering; the Imperial authorities of German East Africa were "scandalised" by the state of affairs, and were doing their best to prevent convoys of slave from crossing German territory.

While thus the old form of slave-raiding appears to be carried on with impunity under the very eyes of the Congo Administration in some parts of Katanga, the lot of the natives in the North-Western portion of Katanga within the area crossed by the transport route, Lusambo-Pania—Mutumbu-Kabinda-Kianga, would seem, according to the information which has reached this association, to be even harder than the lot of tribes in other parts subjected to occasional or frequent raids by armed bands.

DEVoured BY FAMISHING
WOLVES.

A ROUMANIAN TRAGEDY.

Bucharest, January 2.—Snow in Roumania has grim terrors not known in Western Europe.
Wolves are still unpleasantly numerous in the country, and every year, during the hard weather, they claim several victims.

The first victims of the present year are a parish priest and his man-servant, who have been devoured under awful circumstances.
The priest, whose name was Curesi, was pope of the village of Ludesti, in the Dimbovitza district.

A few days ago he went by sledge, with his servant, to make some purchases. Snow had for days lain thick on the ground, and on their return they were overtaken by dusk in the forest, not far from Ludesti, and were attacked by a pack of wolves.

Mad with fright, the horses broke from control and bolted, overturning the sledge, and the two unfortunate men were thrown out.
The traces broke, leaving the sledge behind, and the terrified animals never stopped in their course until they reached the first outskirts.

A search party was then organised, and,
following the tracks of the horses' hoofs, there were at last discovered the paw marks in the snow; the splashes of blood, and the tatters of what had been clothing, which told with a vividness only too horrible what had happened.

Intimation.

YOU WILL NOT be deceived. That there are cheats and frauds in plenty everybody knows; but it is seldom or never that any large business house is guilty of them, no matter what line of trade it follows.
There can be no permanent success of any kind based on dishonesty or deception. There never was, and never will be. The men who try that are simply fools and soon come to grief—as they deserve. Now many persons are, nevertheless, afraid to buy certain advertisements lest they be humbugged and deluded; especially are they slow to place confidence in published statements of the merits of medicines. The remedy known as WAMPOLE'S PREPARATION

is as safe and genuine an article to purchase as flour, silk or cotton goods from the mills of manufacturers with a world-wide reputation.
We could not afford to exaggerate its qualities or misrepresent it in the least; and it is not necessary. It is palatable as honey and contains the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry; and how valuable such a blending of these important medicinal agents must be to plain to everybody. It is beyond price in Anemia, Insomnia, Weakness and lack of Nervous Tone, Poor Digestion, Wasting Diseases, La Grippe, Lung Troubles and Blood Impurities. Science can furnish nothing better —perhaps nothing so good. Dr. W. H. Dalfé, of Canada, says: "I have used it in my practice and take pleasure in recommending it as a valuable tonic and reconstructive." It is a remedy that can afford to appeal to its record and represents the science and knowledge of bright and aggressive medical investigation.
Effective from the first dose. "You cannot be disappointed in it." Like all good things it is imitated. Sold by chemists throughout the world.

HONGKONG, THURSDAY, FEB. 7, 1907.

HONGKONG'S COMMERCIAL ADVANCEMENT.

Of the many interesting features which marked the reception given by the community of Hongkong to the Duke and Duchess of Connaught yesterday, none was of more significance than the insistence by His Royal Highness on the commercial importance of the Colony. There has always been a clique or congerie which would regard Hongkong as being little more or less than a coaling station for the British Fleet, a military stronghold giving opportunities of obtaining something more than a pled à terre in China. It has even been suggested that the railway from Kowloon to Canton, now in course of construction, will be of more value to the Empire as a source of strategic importance than a link in the commercial development of the port. Such a pernicious doctrine has obtained credence in many quarters, with the obvious consequence that the numerous business enterprises which have arisen and been carried on with resource and success have been slighted and deprecated when they have not been absolutely ignored. As a matter of fact, which cannot be gainsaid, Hongkong has devoted more attention to the commercial side of its career than to the peripatetic regiments which have their temporary habitation on the island. From a social point of view the presence of the military is decidedly of advantage to the Colony, though as to their value as military units we confess ourselves unable to judge. No doubt in times of local uprisings, which fortunately are few and far between, their services would prove invaluable, and it cannot be denied that several thousand European and Indian soldiers favourably affect local trade and contribute to the welfare of the smaller merchants of the Colony. But they are not an integral portion of Hongkong's population, for it is conceivable that Hongkong would still flourish and provide a rallying ground for British trade in South China, even although the troops were withdrawn. And in these days when disarmament is in the air—a visionary idea, perhaps—and an economical Liberal Government is cutting down expenses by reducing the number of regiments, allocating new stations and reorganising the Services generally, it is not to be assumed that Hongkong will always have the privilege of entertaining an army establishment of the existing strength in the Colony. Then the true factor in the prosperity of the port is bound to come into prominence and it will be made abundantly clear how much Hongkong owes to the initiative, energy, and dogged perseverance of the mercantile community. The Duke of Connaught with great understanding recognised this fact and emphasised it. He referred to the "terrible inflictions" which have befallen the Colony—a portion of our annals which was rather too much dwelt upon in the address from the community—and observed: "I pray, now, that these are matters of the past, that there is an era of unbroken commercial prosperity before you; also that the developments and progress, so well begun, will continue and prosper." A community which can raise one way or another a sum approaching $300,000 for the relief of suffering inhabitants, and whose Government, in a time of stress and comparative depression, can guarantee a like amount, is not exactly on the verge of bankruptcy. Of course, Hongkong has many commercial rivals, our allies the Japanese being by no means the least pertinacious, but competition rightly directed is not to be feared, for it should prove more in the nature of a spur than a check to individual and organised effort. No one can pretend to foretell the results likely to flow from the construction of railways throughout South China, the impetus which will probably be given to trade in general, and the demand which it may be assumed will arise for articles of Western manufacture when the natives of the interior are brought into direct communication with the outposts. Each successive report by the various Commissioners of Customs in China teems with references to the partiality which the Chinese display for Western products, and each attributes these new and increasing demands for foreign importations to the advance of education and the effect of an ever-widening system of railways. The Duke was undoubtedly right when he suggested that with the development of our great neighbour we might hope to experience a period of continued progress and prosperity. In his closing remarks His Royal Highness observed that: "It is therefore a peculiar pleasure to us to think how well placed Hongkong is to fight the battles for commercial supremacy. The value and importance of this great port is fully appreciated by those at Home who watch over and guide the destinies of our Empire." Certainly, Hongkong is well placed for the distribution of foreign wares throughout the length and breadth of South China, but a watchful eye must be kept on the energetic residents of Canton, and their undoubted scheme to rehabilitate the ancient port of Whampoa at the expense of this Colony. In each of his speeches, the Duke dwelt on the commerce of Hongkong, a fact which must have been noted with satisfaction by those who extended a welcome to the Ducal party, most of the Colony's representatives being men who have in no small measure assisted in advancing the commercial interests of the port.

DHANJISHALL COOPER, a Parsee lad, twelve years of age, residing at No. 132, Wellington Street, was charged before Mr. C. A. D. Melbourne, at the Police Court, to-day, with disturbing the occupants of No. 19, Caine Road, on the 5th instant, by ringing the door bell. The complainant, it is reported, have been put to some inconvenience of late by some person who was in the habit of tugging at their door bell and getting out of sight soon after. A watch was kept and young Cooper was caught. The case was remanded. Bail $5.

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

TWENTY-TWO men were arrested at No. 144, Queen's Road East last night by virtue of a gambling warrant. The raid took place about nine o'clock and was conducted by Sergeant Lee. The men were paraded before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Police Court, this morning, and fined $5 each.

HENRY Bowden, a petty officer on board H. M. S. Vivace, charged Lau Ping, a rich kasha coolie (No. 1647), before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Police Court, to-day, with assault. The complainant's story was that while he was walking in Connaught Road West shortly after midnight yesterday he was struck on the head from behind. Turning round he saw the accused, tearing down the road. A chase followed and accused was run to earth. The latter denied the allegation. His Worship did not place much reliance on complainant's narrative and adjourned the case.

A STREET coolie, whose pedigree is well known to the police, was arrested at Causeway Bay yesterday afternoon and charged before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Police Court, this morning, with stealing two iron bars, the property of a contractor, employed by Messrs. Geo. Fenwick and Company. A second charge of returning from banishment also appeared on the charge sheet. The iron bars, defendant said, were his working tools. He admitted being banished from the Colony some time last year and explained his presence in Hongkong thus: "While in Canton I was told by my friends that I could return to Hongkong and that if I turned a good man and got employment I would come to no trouble." "Thirteen months' hard labour and four hours' stocks" announced the Court.

PERCY Hutchins is a Briton with a very lively turn of mind, but he is not altogether particular enough as to what that turn leads him to, and this failure led him into trouble in the wee hours of the morning. Percy is an unemployed seaman and resides at the Sailors' Home. On Monday evening he started out to enjoy life, but it cost him eventually more than he expected. At about 3 a.m., next morning Percy was noticed in Arsenal Street having an altercation with a rich kasha coolie, while at the same time he was "blowing many blasts" on a police-whistle. Hearing the shrill sounds on an Indian constable came upon the scene to inquire what all the racket was about, when Percy, thinking the Indian policeman had evil intentions against his welfare, and designs upon his whistle, became so excited and obstreperous as to require his removal to No. 2 Police Station. But Percy had "looked upon the wine when it was red," or, in other words, had indulged too much in the juice of the hop, and a charge of being drunk and disorderly had to be entered against the name of "Percy Hutchins, seaman, unemployed." Mr. C. A. D. Melbourne dealt with the case, and considered that a fine of $2, with the payment of 35 cents to his rich kasha coolie, whom he had previously refused to pay, would about meet the ends of justice—as far as Percy was concerned.

DUCHESS OF CONNAUGHT AND POOR WIDOW.

ROYAL GIFTS TO MOTHER OF MOTOR-CAR VICTIM.

Owing to the kind thoughtfulness of the Duchess of Connaught, the poor widow whose son was killed by the motor-car in which her Royal Highness was travelling some three months ago, was made very happy last Christmas.

One day there came a knock at No. 8, Elm-cottages, a small house overlooking the railway at Houslow, where the widow, Mrs. Coker, lives. On opening the door she found a messenger, who said he had come from Clarence House with a hamper for her. Further than that, he handed to her five sovereigns and a letter from Major Murray, equerry to the Duchess of Connaught, which was as follows:—"I am desired by her Royal Highness the Duchess of Connaught to send you £5 for Christmas, with her Royal Highness's best wishes to you. I am also sending you a hamper with the bearer of this letter. The Duchess of Connaught hopes you may find these things useful, and that with the money you may be able to buy something useful for yourself and daughters. Her Royal Highness, who is laid up herself just now with a chill, would be glad to hear that you are getting on well."

The hamper contained a large turkey, a box of sweets, a large Christmas cake, a bottle of port wine, a dozen mince-pies, and a box of candied fruits.

With what joy the poor widow viewed the contents can easily be imagined, as the gift came at a time when she was, to use her own words, "hard up." But it was the letter which touched her most, and by the aid of a lady living in the neighbourhood a letter of sincere thanks was forwarded to the Duchess.

Seen by a Daily Chronicle representative, Mrs. Coker said, "I was delighted by the Duchess's kindness, and I should like to thank her again through your paper. The money was very acceptable; with sums of it I bought a pair of blankets and quilts, which we badly needed."

The turkey was served up on Christmas Day, and the little family party consisted of the widow and her daughters, Matilda (aged seventeen) and Annie (aged fourteen), her little boy, a relation, and the baby born since the sad accident. The cake was reserved for yesterday, when it was cut for tea.

Mrs. Coker is in receipt of 7s. 6d. a week out of a fund of £25 placed to her credit by the Duchess of Connaught, and for from a fund of a like amount realised at a benefit performance at the Houslow Hippodrome. This is her total income, and as this can only last for another eight or nine months the outlook is not bright.

IMPERSONATING EXCISE OFFICERS.

There was a considerable amount of running done near the Canton and Macao Wharf this morning, on the arrival of the boat from Canton—but, as is often the case, the race was not for the swiftest, and he who was first, verily and indeed proved last. All the trouble was caused by the credulity, in the first instance, and the suspicions in the second of a junkmaster. Ma Yat Nam, master of junk No. 1415, was standing like a country yokel on the wharf, gazing helplessly around, having under his arm, a bundle and a Chinese pillow-box, thus showing every sign that he was a traveller, either just arrived, or just about to depart, and therefore his bundle and pillow-box, it might safely be assumed, contained all his worldly goods. At any rate, one Lau Cheung, a tailor, (a tailor's "goose" he proved in this instance) and one He Cheung did assume so, and stepped up to Ma, and blandly informed him that they were excise officers, and they were there to search all passengers' baggage, in case they might be carrying around that insidious drug—the product of the poppy. Ma, confidently, in the full knowledge of his innocence, let them search his belongings. But when one man held him tight, while the other made off with his goods and chattels, the owner began to get suspicious, that all was not right and as it should be, and so he raised a row. The row attracted a policeman, and, as his approach was observed, the two "excise officers" ran; the complainant ran; the policeman ran; sympathisers ran; everybody ran; until the culprits were run to earth in the dock in Mr. F. A. Hazeland's Court, that Magistrate awarding each of them one month's hard labour and four hours in the stocks.

ANOTHER MENACE

TO THE WORLD'S HEALTH.

Microbes we have always with us; germs are in everything; our foods menace us at every mouthful, and even boiled and filtered water, we are told, may communicate to us some further bacilli of which we wot not. We must not smoke; we must not eat; we must not drink; we must not osculate—and as if that were not enough, to make life absolutely not worth living, we are told that there is death in that very helpful and convenient—even necessary invention—the lift. If the following report is true—and it bears the earmarks of veracity—it will simply be left to us to say, in the words of the backstairs poet—"We dunno" where we are!

Lokjw may follow nervous shock experienced by women and children who are making their first trip on speedy lifts. A number of cases are cited in proof of this, and the latest is reported to day from Morrisstown, New Jersey, where Mrs. Hennion, aged twenty-six, lies dead. The lady had never been in a New York express elevator, which will make the journey from top to bottom of a twenty-storey sky scraper without a halt. Recently she went up to do some shopping, together with her husband. She entered the express lift on the tenth floor of a furniture shop. The attendant threw back the lever and the car shot downwards. The swift descent terrified Mrs. Hennion, and during the few seconds occupied in the trip, she sustained an acute nervous shock. The efforts of her husband to calm her, it appears, were futile, and when the ground floor was reached she was assisted into the fresh air, which apparently recovered her. She then sought to dismiss the matter from her mind, but a few days later lokjw, directly attributed to the nervous shock, intervened, and death followed. The lady was strong and healthy and of average courage.—Ex.

ALLEGED DISHONEST COOLIE.

DISAPPEARED WITH CASH BOX.

Until some months ago it was possible for Chinese women in Hongkong to obtain licences from the Government to run opium divans. Why this "old custom" should have been discontinued was not stated, but that such was the case is proved by an order, issued not so long ago, which prohibited any woman being the licensee of any opium divan. This order apparently was not known to Mrs. Chan Mui, the owner of a divan at No. 12, Queen Victoria Street, and when she went to get her licence renewed a few weeks ago she received a startler. She was told that it was impossible, that licences in future were only to be issued to men, and that if she wanted a permit she must produce some male friend in whose name it would be issued. Chan Mui was a bit annoyed at first, but that did not remedy matters; if she wanted to continue business a man must be got. After some days of mental worry as to who was the most likely person among her male acquaintances she could trust, she picked out one Ip Fat, and the licence was secured, Ip taking supreme command of the divan. He was alleged to have drawn a month's wages the very day he took charge. Several days later she noticed that the receipts of the divan were gradually beginning to grow less. At the rate things were going the old woman feared something serious would happen one day, but did not imagine that it would come so soon. On the morning of the 5th instant the old woman was in a hysterical condition. Ip could not be found anywhere, likewise her money box, containing $38. She hurried to the Central Police Station and lodged a complaint. A hunt was made for the missing Ip, but it proved fruitless. She secured a warrant this morning from a magistrate for his arrest, which will come about if she meets him again.

DISCRETION: AND THE LACK OF IT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TELEGRAPH."

SIR,—While waiting on one of the Stands yesterday for the arrival of His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, to unveil the statues of the King and the Prince of Wales, my attention was called by a Chinese gentleman friend, to an occurrence that really, under the circumstances, was most regrettable offering, as it did, what might be deemed an insult to a respectable Chinese family, who, through unavoidable circumstances, were compelled to be present without the protection of their male folk. The Stand was nearly full, and in the front row were quietly seated two Chinese ladies, with a little Chinese girl. Suddenly an individual, wearing a uniform, singled out the Chinese ladies alone, of all who occupied seats on the stand—a most invidious distinction—demanded to know if they had tickets! Why, and by what authority were they singled out for this public recognition? Of course, they had tickets, as anyone might have known, or how, otherwise, could they have passed the relays of police guarding the entrance and approaches to the stands, erected for the spectators on the Square? Possibly the individual in question wanted the seats for his own personal friends, but, even so, that would not add to his offence, which was already sufficiently unwarranted. What would have been the position of these ladies, supposing that after they had passed to their seats they had considered their tickets of no further use, and had torn them up and flung them down, to be trampled to dust by later arrivals? Would they have been ejected to the entrance to the grounds by this person and thence ejected? Or would they have been handed over to the tender mercies of another minion, of less high and mighty degree? As a matter of fact, I was not asked, to show my ticket, while several lady friends laughingly remarked that they had "left theirs at home!" If a man is to be dressed in a little authority, however brief, in such a position, he should be made to study, besides law and the drill-book, that very necessary subject—and one that is of paramount importance—Discretion!

ANTI-BUMPTIOUSNESS.

Hongkong, 7th February.

A WOMAN'S TRICK FAILED.

FUTILE ATTEMPT TO GAOI INNOCENT MAN.

A young Chinese woman, whose husband has a berth on an ocean-going steamer, residing at No. 99, Station Street, Yau-mai-ti, put the police to no end of trouble last night over a report she made, which eventually turned out to be a fake. At about ten o'clock last night she informed Sergeant Appleton that while leaving her house at eight o'clock that evening she was "held up" at the foot of the staircase by a man, who, after ill-treating her, stole from her a number of jewels. She was sure she could identify him again. "You said you were robbed at eight o'clock. How is it you take two hours to come here?" asked the Sergeant. The woman failed to give an explanation and the officer became suspicious as to the truth of her story. He decided, however, to inquire into the matter and sent two detectives to her house to investigate. On arrival they were received by two other women, who, not knowing who the two men were, decided to be communicative. "I hear that the mistress of this house has been 'held up' and robbed," said one of the sleuthbonds. "Don't you believe it for a minute," one of the women was alleged to have replied. "She left her prepared to lodge a report to that effect."

"Why?" asked the other 'ec. "Disappointment in love" came the reply. "You see she is a married woman. Her husband is always at sea. She loves a man living in the neighbourhood, who cares nothing for her. By making this report it is her intention of getting him locked up and charged as her assailant," one woman explained. The last word was not out when the mistress entered the room. She had heard part of the story coming upstairs. She bowed to the two unknown men in the room, and addressing one of the women said: "Don't say any more about it. I have a policeman outside."

The two detectives soon afterwards took their departure and reported the facts to the sergeant, who sent for the woman. After some interrogation she broke down and made a confession, which corresponded with that given above, and was allowed to leave the station.

At the luncheon Mr. Becker, the architect, handed the key of the building to the committee, who in turn handed the key over to the president, Mr. C. Stepharius.

It is stated that the building cost 425,000 taels.

The Lords and Commons.

LONDON, 5th February.

Mr. Churchill, speaking at Manchester, said the Peers had deliberately provoked a constitutional struggle and the Commons would take up the challenge without hesitation. Parliament would meet the conditions of war. We had outlived the times in which the House of Commons could not make their power effective without a general election, though that was inevitable in the end.

THE WRECK AT CAPE VARELLA.

By the s.s. Rajahmuni, which arrived from Hongkong yesterday, later news has been received of the wrecks of the s.s. Wingkok and the tug Robert Cooke at Cape Varella. The salvage steamer Protector, which went down about a fortnight ago to attempt to refloat the stranded vessels, is unable to commence operations. The prevalence of the strong monsoon with strong wind and heavy sea renders any attempt at approaching too close to the wrecks extremely hazardous. It is not believed that the monsoon will moderate until early in April. In the meantime the wrecks must be left where they are, and the hope is entertained that no further damage will result during the Protector's period of enforced idleness.

SHANGHAI PAPER HUNT ACCIDENT.

DEATH OF MR. PEARSE.

A very sad accident occurred during the progress of the Paper Hunt Handicap on Saturday afternoon, reports the N. C. D. News of the 18th inst., whereby Mr. D. F. Pearse was badly injured that he died at the General Hospital at 12.15 a.m. on Sunday. Mr. Pearse was riding in the hunt on the Yerman Creek line when his pony stumbled and fell some yards in front of a dry jump, precipitating his rider into the jump. It was immediately seen that Mr. Pearse was very badly injured, the lower portion of his body being quite paralyzed. Several gentlemen in the hunt assisted to remove him from his position and there were doctors present almost immediately. The injured rider was carried to Nanyang College, an ambulance was sent for, and on this he was conveyed to the General Hospital. Severe as were his injuries, Mr. Pearse was conscious until quite late in the evening.

David Francis Pearse, was twenty years of age. He arrived in Hongkong about three years ago as tea-master for the firm of Messrs. Rodewald and Healy, and at the expiration of the last two Hankow tea seasons he has come to Shanghai to assist in the purchase of green tea for his firm in conjunction with Messrs. Geddes & Co. He joined the Light Horse, S.V.C., as a trooper in 1905, and was a popular member, while his keenness for riding took him to Amoy where he rode in the races. Although comparatively a recent arrival in Shanghai he soon became known to a large circle of people. He was one of the class of young men that Shanghai can ill afford to lose, his business ability as well as his quiet and unassuming manner winning for him friends wherever he went. Great sympathy will be felt in Shanghai for deceased's relations and friends in England.

JAPANESE WAR DECORATIONS.

FURTHER HONOURS.

At the Imperial Palace at Tokyo, Marshal Marquis Yamagata and a number of military and naval officers above the rank of Major-General or Rear-Admiral were decorated by his Majesty the Emperor on the 28th ult. in recognition of their services during the late Russo-Japanese War.

Marquis Ito and the Ministers of State were also decorated for services rendered by them in their official capacity in connection with the administration during the campaign.

THE ROYAL VISIT.

This morning His Royal Highness was busily engaged inspecting the troops in garrison, luncheon afterwards with the Officers of the 129th Baluchis (Duke of Connaught's Own), the Band of that regiment playing select airs during the tiffin hour. The inspection duties were resumed by His Royal Highness the Duke after tiffin until a late hour.

During the forenoon their Royal Highnesses the Duchess and Princess Patricia of Connaught and Miss Pelly made an en route visit to Queen's Road and spent the time in the employment so dear to the lady's heart, whether in palace or cottage—shopping.

A STRAITS APPRECIATION.

When one reflects how rapidly the European part of a tropical community is bound to change, and be reproduced over and over again in a comparatively short span of years, it may be considered as an exceptional case, writes the Singapore Free Press editorially on 1st inst., that the same man that in these columns, seventeen years ago, extended a cordial welcome on behalf of a loyal community to their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, is once more privileged to discharge that pleasant duty on a second occasion. Then the Duke had made for himself by his devotion to his military profession, by the high soldierly capacities he brought to bear on the discharge of his duties, and by the warm interest he took in the welfare of the soldier, the reputation of being an officer to whom the highest executive and administrative command was open, on strength of military merit alone. All that the nation has fully recognised long ago, and seventeen years ago the Duke completed his term of duty in command of the Bombay army, many of whose units are second to none in the entire Indian army, and no few of whom have the repute of corps d'élite, hard to equal anywhere, even if pitted against any European army. Since then the Duke has added to his splendid record the admirable work done as Commander-in-Chief in Ireland and in command of the First Army Corps at Aldershot. That is not all, by any means. For the recent reorganisation of the Army implied in the abolition of the office of Commander-in-Chief, so long held by the Duke's Royal uncle, the grand old soldier the Duke of Cambridge, has been the means of conferring upon the Duke of Connaught the high and responsible office of Inspector-General of the Forces. The function of the Inspector-General's department must be presumed to be to maintain, by dint of effective surveillance, the efficiency of every branch of the Army as a fighting machine. The Chief of the General Staff and his powerfully manned department must deal with such matters as plans of campaign, mobilisation, military intelligence, direction of military operations, and so on. But it is the function of the Inspector-General and his staff to keep the army up to the highest point of combatant perfection attainable, by dint of that inspection and report that acts as a conscience even to the most keen commanding officer. In this respect the Duke of Connaught adds his capable staff should be looked upon as the greatest vivifying influence in the army. And this can be the better understood when we note that H. R. H. is also President of the Selection Board, which has to decide all questions of promotion, this so important a matter in the higher grades of command. Now that the appointment of Commander-in-Chief has been put into commission by the formation of the Army Council, we may well look upon the Duke of Connaught as the first Soldier in the Army from the Executive point of view. It is in this capacity that H. R. H. visits the Far East just now, although it is correct to say that to-day the Duke and Duchess are rather Royal visitors, the Duke's real military work being undertaken on the return journey a fortnight hence. We think we can hardly do better than repeat what we wrote seventeen years ago, in the days when the Good Queen Victoria was still upon the throne, on the occasion of the last visit of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught to Singapore, on their way home to England. We then said in these columns, of the Duke, as a soldier—

The Duke of Connaught by the circumstances of his career has served to bring the Royal family into fuller touch with the English people in one point. The English, more than any other nation, have to find careers for their sons abroad, and to no small extent within the tropics. Hardly a family among the Queen's subjects but has at least one member or close relation abroad in the Great Britain lying far outside the limits of the United Kingdom. The errand life of the Navy is familiar to representatives of two living generations of the Royal Family, and the heir Apparent made some years ago an important tour through a large portion of India, an experience this his own eldest son is now repeating, and an experience which is an indispensable educational progress to a Prince upon whom, in the ordinary course of nature, the lot must one day fall to wear India's Imperial crown. But the case of the Soldier-Duke is different. For years his profession has required his presence in India and there he has made for the time his home with wife and children, subject in all things to the climatic risks and adverse influences that inevitably tell sooner or later upon the most robust English constitution. More than any other of the Royal Family can the Duke enter into the feelings of expatriated Englishmen and in the rejoicing over his safe return home will his Royal Mother share those thankful feelings that so many other English mothers have known so well. In a word, the Duke's eastern life has made him "one of us." By that he knows us better, and we know him better. As soldier he wins praise from his comrades wherever he goes, and that for the best of all reasons; that he is a soldier first and a Prince afterwards.

CANTON DAY BY DAY.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Canton, 5th February, 1907.
At 8 p.m. last evening, a fire broke out in a druggist shop in San Tou Lan. The different fire brigades at once appeared on the scene and got the fire under control, before much damage was done. The building where the fire originated was the only building entirely gutted.

As the work on the construction of the new bond was alleged to have been carried out in an unsatisfactory manner, the contractors, Chan Lun Tai & Co., and their properties have been seized by the authorities pending further instructions from the Viceroy. The officials of the Bunding Work Department will carry out a survey as to the dimensions and examine the materials used in the construction so as to bring the case to a conclusion.

The Canton Bureau of Education has issued a proclamation instructing that students of junior age should not study foreign languages at the same time while they are learning Chinese, and ordering the teachers of all the lower schools of the province not to teach their young pupils foreign languages on the ground that they are too young to study such languages, until they have a good knowledge of the vernacular language.

A Shanghai letter received here states that H. E. Shum, Viceroy designate to the Yunkwei provinces, has informed the Government that he will start from Shanghai for his new post at the end of the first moon, next year.

The Canton Government Paper Manufactory has sent out different specimens of printed forms and stationery which are to be used in all Government departments throughout the province. Yesterday, H. E. the Viceroy issued a notification to all Government offices, that from the 1st day of the 1st moon, next year, all Government departments are to use the new printed forms and stationery.

Yesterday, the Viceroy ordered Commodore Yau to proceed to Hongkong with the Chinese gunboat Fook Po to meet the newly-appointed Lieutenant Tantar-General of Canton, Li Kwok Gil.

Yesterday, a Hongkong merchant, Mr. Yip Yiu, of the Hongkong firm of Wah Yik Company, applied to the Bureau of Commerce, Industries and Agriculture, of Canton, for permission to float a company, with a capital of $1,000,000 to build an electric tramway at Kongmoon in Sanwui district. The Bureau has now written to the Sanwui Magistrate inquiring about the undertaking, and inquiring if the scheme would in any way be detrimental to future railway undertakings.

Certain merchants of Canton are at present forming a company to run several steam launches between Canton and Fatsan, for the purpose of carrying merchandise and passengers, especially the former.

The Japanese Consul at Canton has sent a dispatch to H. E. Viceroy Chow informing him that a certain Japanese theatrical troupe intend to hold a Japanese theatrical performance during the Chinese New Year holidays in the western suburb, and asking him to give the necessary protection to the troupe during that time. In reply H. E. Viceroy Chow stated that when ex-Viceroy Shum was in office here, he had refused several foreigners permission when applying for similar privileges on account of the fear that a disturbance might be raised by the people, and that he is in this instance obliged to treat the application in the same manner.

A fire occurred this morning, at three o'clock, at Wai Pin Street, inside the City. The fire occurred in a woodware shop and destroyed three buildings in all.

IMPERIAL CHINESE RAILWAY ISSOR.

The L. & C. Express of 11th inst. says:—On 9th inst. the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation invited subscriptions for £60,000 5 per cent. Sterling Bonds of the Imperial Chinese Railways, Shanghai-Nanking line, being part of a loan for £3,250,000, of which £2,250,000 has been issued. The bonds are £100 each, and the first coupon for £1, being interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the instalments, will be payable on June 1 next. The subscription price is par, and the loan is for 50 years from June, 1903, but the bonds are redeemable at six months' notice after 12½ years, and up to 25 years at 102½ per cent., and after 25 years at par at the option of the Chinese Government. In addition to the unconditional guarantee of the loan by the Chinese Government, both as to principal and interest, it is provided by the agreement that in the event of default in payment of principal or interest, the whole of the railway, with all its appurtenances, shall be handed over to the British and Chinese Corporation, to be dealt with by it in such manner as will ensure the proper protection of the interests of the bondholders. The loan agreement provides that in any negotiations between the Railway administration and the British and Chinese Corporation, the Corporation shall represent the bondholders and be empowered to act on their behalf. It also reserves power to make a further temporary issue of £250,000 Bonds at 6 per cent. per annum for the purposes of paying for the necessary land for the railway to rank pari passu with the present and former issues as regards guarantee and security, but to be redeemable at par at any time on giving six months' notice. The present loan is to provide further funds for construction and equipment, and a report by the consulting engineers on the present position of the railway is included in the prospectus.

According to the prospectus the subscription list which was opened on 9th inst. was to be closed at or before four o'clock on the 11th. The Bonds, however, were so largely over-subscribed that the list for London was closed at three o'clock on the first day. It is stated that one application alone was for the sum offered. Bonds are quoted at 1 premium.

GAMBLERS' FREE LODGED.

WANTED MORE AIR-SPACE.

Reports having been made to the owner of No. 16, Possession Street, an unoccupied house, that it was being used nightly by coolies as their sleeping quarters—rent-free—he made up his mind that he would investigate the matter, and find out who was getting free lodging from him. Accordingly, last night, after he had absorbed his evening meal, he took a quiet stroll along the road, like an innocent wayfarer, until he came in front of his property. Stopping, to light a cigarette, no doubt, he heard voices, and the voices proceeded from a room in his unoccupied house. He being a man of considerable acumen, and being endowed with an unusual amount of good common sense, he made no sign to alarm the trespassers but proceeded swiftly to the Central Police Station, and there reported the matter of the illegal occupation of his property to Inspector Ritchie. A posse of police was at once despatched to the scene, and eleven men, who were in unlawful possession of the premises, with the object of securing a free and comfortable night's lodging, were taken on the premises. On being arrested by Inspector Ritchie's men the culprits put up $25 bail each and were released. This morning they were placed before Mr. C. T. D. Melbourne, on surrendering to their bail, and set up a somewhat curious defence. From their story it appears that the first defendant, who is making arrangements for carrying on the "Shake the Dragon" game during the Chinese New Year had rented No. 16, Possession Street, the house adjoining the one in question, but having engaged the other defendants to assist him in the "Dragon" operations, and taken them to live with him in the meantime, he found No. 16 too small to accommodate his big "family," so, without going through the formality of saying "with your leave" to the landlord, he quietly vacated No. 16 with his suite, and took possession of No. 16, which was a larger house. He produced a paper, said to be a receipt for rent paid, and it was all so sweetly simple and innocent that the searchers after cheap lodging were all discharged, their bail money, of course, being returned to them.

BODIES OF THE SQUALL.

BODIES FLOATING IN THE HARBOUR.

Although it is nearly a fortnight since the severe and death-dealing squall swept over Hongkong yet the harbour police are still being kept busy handling dead bodies. On Monday last four corpses were picked out of the harbour; on Tuesday five more were recovered; and yesterday a similar number were seen drifting into the harbour, making a total of fourteen bodies recovered in three days. The remains were removed to the Kowloon morgue, whence preparations were made for burial. Identification was absolutely impossible owing to the condition of the bodies. It is believed, however, that the deceased were formerly the crews of deep sea fishing junks and that their craft were destroyed during the disastrous blow of the 28th ultimo. They have been floating about for some days and the sudden change of the tide brought them into this port where they were taken charge of by the police.

THE CHINA FAMINE.

OFFICIAL OBSTRUCTION.

Suchien, February 7.

I have returned from a five days' journey through the country on the west of the Canal to the hiens in the district of Suining towards Suchou and Hsuehoufou, and northward towards Chinpeichou, Tusan and Yaowan. These parts are denuded of transport animals; they are extremely difficult to traverse, and lawlessness abounds.

The following are the prices of foodstuffs per catty:—The poorest rice is 50 to 60 cash; wheat is almost unobtainable, but in a few places fetches 80 cash; bean cakes 48 cash; sweet potato leaves 16 to 33 cash. The people are eating stewed bark mixed with garlic.

At Chinpeichou the official ten days ago fixed the price of wheat at 1,600 cash per ten (about half a bushel) while the neighbouring markets had been selling it at over 2,000 cash per ten; consequently the place is destitute of food stuffs.

Dogs are being caught by the starving people at night time by means of an arrangement with spring and hooks which are baited. To prevent their howling, the dogs are drugged and then killed and eaten.

Middle-age women and wives are being sold for from ten to fifteen dollars and young children for three or four dollars.

It is remarked—almost everywhere that in places apparently prosperous with stacks of straw, where animals are found, the people are without grain and are starving on green gruel, as they are powerless to buy food at current rates. It is urgently to be insisted that the Grand Canal is the sole channel by which supplies can come. The prices rise in proportion to the distance up the canal, and yet nothing is coming. I find the flour dispatched by the Shanghai committee has still not arrived here. There are various rumours as to the reason for the delay, among them the lack of facilities for transport, difficulty at the locks and the action of the officials in refusing to pay the boatmen through cantankerousness at interference and help.

The condition of the people is more desperate daily.—N. C. D. News.

FRED. COOKE, a stoker, on board H.M.S. Astraea, put in an appearance before Mr. C. A. D. Melbourne, at the Police Court, this morning, on a charge of behaving in a disorderly manner in Connaught Road Central, at five o'clock this morning, and damaging a ricksha to the extent of $3. Cooke denied that he was disorderly, and after evidence had been heard he was upheld by the Court. Something annoyed Cooke, it was alleged, and his ambitions rose until he smashed the ricksha. He was ordered to pay the coolie $3 compensation.

PASSENGER SERVICE.

By the new steamers "RHEANIA," "HAUSBURG" and "HOHENSTAUFEN." These steamers offer to the public the highest comfort yet attained in ocean travelling. They are especially built for the tropics with very large well ventilated cabins, amidships, lighted throughout by electricity, fans provided in each cabin. The berths are not arranged one above the other as it has been the fashion hitherto, but the staterooms closely resemble ordinary sleeping rooms on shore, the berths standing like beds at either side of the cabins. As a novelty, a number of cabins are provided for single passengers. These steamers call at NAPLES and PLYMOUTH. In addition to the above steamers, the s.s. "SILESIA" and "SCANDIA" carry first class passengers. Return Tickets issued at reduced rates, through tickets issued to NEW YORK via NAPLES, SOUTHAMPTON and HAMBURG.

THE TYPHOON.

"BOSS OF THE STORM."

The typhoon is the boss of all storms known to the sailor-man, says a writer in the Chicago Record-Herald, and its home is in the China and Japan seas. Ask a Chinese sailor what a typhoon is and he will reply, "the number one pldgin storm," meaning, thereby, that it is the "best ever." Ask the American or European sailor what a typhoon is and he will declare that "It's hell, and then some."

Ask the resident of Hongkong the definition of a typhoon and he will tell you that it is, perhaps, the greatest curse of his city. Ask the scientific man what a typhoon is and he will tell you that it is a circular storm of resistless power and fury and then give you a dozen theories of its cause and origin, any one of which you are at liberty to accept. Ask the man who makes the sea charts what he knows about typhoons, and he will say that a typhoon is number twelve on the chart which contains only twelve grades of sea storms.

Interest in the typhoon and its habits has been sharpened by the terrible visitation which Hongkong had last year, when many buildings were destroyed, 10,000 lives lost, twenty-one ships sunk in the harbour and many more badly damaged, to say nothing of the loss of life and property occasioned on the high seas.

This was not the first visitation of the kind experienced by the British colony, which forms the gateway to Southern China. Three times Hongkong has been practically destroyed by a typhoon, the last event being in 1874, when $5,000,000 worth of property and all the shipping were destroyed and 2,000 lives lost. The first great typhoon experienced by the colony was on July 31st and 22nd, 1841, when it was practically wrecked. All the buildings including the hospitals, which were filled with fever patients, were levelled, six foreign ships were sunk and four were driven on shore, twenty-two others were dismantled and an appalling loss of life was caused among the Chinese population.

In 1874 and again in 1896 there were visitations, and in 1906 another terrific storm. Two typhoons with the typhoon satisfied the people of Hongkong that they must change the style and architecture of their building material. Accordingly the visitor to that city now looks with astonishment at solid phalanxes of solid granite buildings around which run deep porticoes sustained by massive pillars. He marvels at such constructions in a semi-tropical climate and begins to think that he is among a queer people until he hears about the characteristics and the habits of the typhoon. Should he chance to visit the colony during the season when this scourge likes to pay its annual visit and is unfortunate or fortunate enough to be present when it calls he will cease to marvel at the great granite structures beneath the burning sun of the Far East.
